Poems by Tony Bozich

There's this house I've seen up Baandee way just north west from the old school site, I've not been that close to it to say it's inhabited with stove and life and light.
You see, it's off the Highway route and partly obscured by trunks of trees, not that any is a leafy brute for the land is flat and has salt disease.
This house – does anyone now live there? For Baandee region once had great drive, with people and work enough to spare, but now you rarely see folk there live.
Villages and towns have gone or slowed, whole regions and many an old abode.

It happened just east of Yellowdine shortly before the sun was due to rise.
Was it night shift on a far gold mine or a distant city of great size?
Or simply the approaching sun's light falling on the cloud ridge distant, low produced this phenomenon bright, a wide front of a billion globes' glow?
Whatever the cause I'll not forget this effect on one September morn when the most beauteous picture seen yet lit up the eastern horizon just before dawn.
After a minute the road dipped down on my far gold mine or distant town.

the new world

the good old days

People used to age with dignity having come to their work end, they evinced a certain benignity resulting largely from life's simpler trend.
In those days of no TV there were fewer cars, no internet, families still gathered together for tea, and children played lots outdoors yet.
Nights they would go to bed well before midnight, and not trouble waking hours or fill their head with i phone or computer bubble.

the bad new days

Existence then was real and solid, although sure sometimes boring or horrible, whereas today society's becoming collared by new nastiness inexorable.
Sure, people and living weren't ideal during say the 1950's years, but things now are becoming surreal from quickening technological gears.
Physical movement is becoming the exception where once it was the rule, and the new electronic deception plays the mind for a fool.
Increasingly people retiring these days have a background of enormous time sitting in that robot like maze of the screen's rhythm and rhyme, hours and hours spent inert indoors staring at some device, twitching fingers, dancing to creeping New World laws, and less of solid value lingers.

on grass or gravel

Something no other sport has got, the great tradition of kick to kick, played only in winter weather, not summer hot, a healthy activity that took the trick.

To Aussie Rules belonged this unique attraction, from end to end kicking the oval ball, boys from all over in interaction, punts, drop kicks, torpedoes long and tall.

Throughout the winter on many an afternoon chaps going down to the football ground, the number growing and pretty soon laughter and the sounds of kicking around.

On grass or gravel and near the goals kick to kick the joy of youthful souls.

How to access free and low-cost help for a mental health issue in Western Australia

There are many free and low-cost services available for people who have financial difficulties (e.g. unemployed or have a healthcare/concession card). These services can be accessed via any GP.

How a GP can help

By talking with you about what is happening and working with you to determine what support is best for you.

This could include:

- Access to self-help resources, support groups, online support and referrals to community services.
- Setting up a Mental Health Care Plan which can allow you to claim a Medicare rebate for up to six visits to a clinical psychologist, mental health or allied mental health professional.
- Depending on your needs, your GP can also refer you for an additional four sessions if required.

Note: For your first visit, please request a 30-minute appointment.

What happens when a GP bulk bills?

Any GP can refer you to the appropriate services. However, with a bulk billing GP the bill for your appointment is sent directly to Medicare and there will be no out of pocket payment for you.

Not all GPs bulk bill – please ask when you book your GP appointment.

How to access a bulk billing GP?

Anyone who is registered with Medicare and has a Medicare card can access a bulk-billing GP. If you are not enrolled with Medicare, you can complete an enrolment form online or visit your nearest Medicare office.

Where to find your nearest bulk billing GP

To find a GP that bulk bills, visit:

healthengine.com.au/find/bulk-billing-gp/WA/

Know your rights when a salesperson knocks

Recent reports from Perth home owners about bogus door-to-door sellers are a good reminder to make sure you know your rights when a salesperson knocks.

In the past few weeks, people have told us about visits from door-to-door water testers who give the impression they are from the Government and make false claims about water quality, but are really sellers of water filtration systems.

Under the Australian Consumer Law (ACL), you have rights when a salesperson approaches you at your front door. These protections apply to 'unsolicited consumer agreements', such as door-to-door selling and telemarketing.

To weed out sellers making false claims or misrepresenting themselves, always ask for identification. If you think a door-to-door salesperson is using deceptive tactics to drum up business, make a written note of the person's and the company's name, address and telephone number.

Providing identification is just one of the rules door-to-door sellers have to follow about how and when can they approach you and what information they are required to give you.

Door-to-door sellers can only contact you between 9am and 6pm on weekdays and between 9am and 5pm on Saturdays, they must explain the purpose of their visit and they have to provide identification. If you ask a salesperson to leave, they must go immediately.

When you make an agreement with a door-to-door seller, they should provide a copy of the signed contract and disclose your 'cooling off' or termination rights. Under the ACL, you have 10 business days to reconsider an agreement and cancel it without penalty.

If you don't want to deal with uninvited door-to-door sellers, email your full name and postal address to consumer@dmirs.wa.gov.au and ask for a "Do not knock" sticker to display on or near your front door.

Telemarketers can only contact you between 9am and 8pm on weekdays and between 9am and 5pm on Saturdays. To opt out of receiving unsolicited telemarketing calls, register your numbers on www.donotcall.gov.au.

For more information call us on 1300 304 054 or visit www.consumerprotection.wa.gov.au.

Pioneers of Yilgarn

Stage 1.

Citizens who built this district between years 1887
and 1914

Oats, William: Captain Oats came to Southern Cross in December 1889 to manage Frasers South Mine. For a short period he also managed Frasers Mine in addition to Frasers South. Oats was a born leader who served as mayor of Southern Cross for some years.

He influenced the future of the town when it was in its infancy. He then won the inaugural parliamentary seat of Yilgarn when it was created, where he contributed even more to the district.

Over time he served in both the lower and upper houses, elected each time he nominated until retirement fifteen years later. Because of his influence as mayor and parliamentarian, some saw him as the 'father' of Southern Cross.
