RURAL NUMBERING SYSTEM UPDATE

The Rural Street Numbering (RSN) System for the Shire of Yilgarn has been commenced with Council's Contractor out and about allocating property numbers for the new address system.

Once all properties have been allocated their new identified rural street number, the Contractor will then erect the new property identifier numbers at the entrance to rural properties. Owners are not to commence use of the RSN until they receive written notification from the Shire confirming the "live" date.

HOW IT WORKS – Property numbers are based on the distance from the start of the road to the property entrance. Odd numbers are on the left, even numbers on the right. For example, the number 327 refers to a property on the left side of the road 3.27km from the road's beginning. Number 1026 is 10.26km from the beginning of the road and on the right side, and number 2253 is on the left 22.53km from where the road started. IT'S THAT SIMPLE.

Where a property uses a main driveway off a road frontage which is not currently the official address, this must be changed to give a new street address to correlate with the RSN and main driveway.

A Lot Number on Plan address is now only used for legal purposes in regard to the land itself. The RSN is to be used for all other purposes, including on the State Electoral Roll. The address must include the RSN, the road name and the "Locality". Relevant Authorities will be notified of your new address.

Where neighbouring Shire's with adjoining roads have already allocated RSN's to properties within their boundaries, the Shire of Yilgarn must continue the numbering in the same direction. Emergency Service personnel are trained to read the RSN's in the reverse direction.

The new address identifier number remains the property of the Shire of Yilgarn and should not be removed or repositioned.

Skeleton weed summer surveillance

As part of the Skeleton Weed Program, the Department of Primary Industries and Regional Development (DPIRD) will be carrying out Random Surveillance within grain growing areas between December 2019 and March 2020.

Part of this surveillance will use unmanned aerial vehicles (UAV) to complement traditional targeted surveillance. We have scheduled UAV surveillance for the Shires of York, Quairading, Beverley and Brookton between 2 and 10 January 2020 for non-infested properties.

Inspecting paddocks

We are seeking landholder cooperation to nominate properties to undertake UAV surveillance searching if they meet the criteria:

- crop (preferable) or pasture paddocks
- minimum of 3 paddocks (150-300ha)
- paddocks to be stock-free for at least 4 weeks
- paddocks not sprayed within the last 4-6 weeks

Reporting options

We encourage all landholders in grain growing areas to search their own paddocks, and report any suspect sightings. Surveillance guidelines are available from your local DPIRD office. Report suspect sightings to your local biosecurity officer at the Narrogin office, Brian Kimber on 0427 986 302 or brian.kimber@dpird.wa.gov.au or via the options below:

- Pest and Disease Information Service (08) 9368 3080 or padis@dpird.wa.gov.au
- MyPestGuide™ Reporter App
- or report online mypestguide.agric.wa.gov.au

For more information on skeleton weed visit agric.wa.gov.au/skeletonweed

Skeleton weed (Chondrilla juncea L.) is a declared pest in Western Australia (WA) under the Biosecurity and Agriculture Management Act 2007. Landholders are responsible for the management and reporting of any suspect sightings.

Grants

Smart Farms Small Grants

15 November 2019

Farmers in Durack with clever, sustainable agriculture ideas can turn them into reality by applying for grants of up to $50,000 under Round 3 of the Smart Farms Small Grants program.

Federal Member for Durack Melissa Price said Australian farmers had a long history of early adoption of innovations.

"We want to hear about clever projects that improve natural resource management and benefit the environment, community and economy," Ms Price said.

Smart Farms Small Grants is one way our Government is encouraging the uptake of new knowledge and skills and increasing the capacity of farming, forestry and fishing communities to adopt best practice sustainable agriculture systems.

"Farmers and pastoralists have always looked after the land and through these grants we can give them a helping hand with that task, so I encourage them to apply. The Liebe Group, Mingenew Irwin Group, Environs Kimberley and the Merredin and Districts Farm Improvement Group are previous successful applicants from my Durack Electorate," Melissa Price said.

Up to $5 million will be provided under Round 3 of Smart Farms Small Grants, with funding of between $5,000 and $50,000 available. Projects may be delivered locally and regionally and must be completed by 30 June 2022.

The Smart Farms program is the key agriculture initiative under phase two of the National Landcare Program.

Round 3 Smart Farms Small Grants applications are open until 19 December 2019. For more information and to apply, visit the Community Grants Hub website www.communitygrants.gov.au.

Ends.

Cancer Council WA urging teens to slip, slop, slap, seek and slide

Half a million Australian teenagers sunburnt on summer weekends

Cancer Council WA is encouraging teens to be SunSmart this National Skin Cancer Action Week and Leavers Week, with new research released today showing 1 in 4 (26 per cent) teenagers are getting sunburnt on summer weekends. Cancer Council's National Sun Protection Survey compared sun protection habits of teenagers aged 12-17 over time to form a picture of how well Australian teens are protecting themselves from harmful UV (ultraviolet) radiation. The latest survey results show there has been no significant decrease in teenage sunburn rates in the last 12 years. This data shows that urgent action is needed to do more to reinforce the "slip, slop, slap, seek and slide" message.

National Skin Cancer Action week runs from 17-23 November and is a partnership between Cancer Council and the Australasian College of Dermatologists to encourage people to use skin protection and drive awareness of the importance of early skin cancer detection.

Pioneers of Yilgarn

Stage 1. Citizens who built this district between years 1887 and 1914

Williams, Evan: Constable Evan Williams was the first policeman in Southern Cross, arriving with his assistant in May 1889. He built his own police station with bush timber, where the primary school now stands. Police work was mundane at first – drunk and disorderly, assault charges, checking miner's rights, and searching for lost persons. Stealing cases involving natives were a concern. Prisoners were chained to a log. Williams' most famous case was arresting Frederick Deeming the murderer at Southern Cross, then accompanying him to Melbourne where he was tried and hung. Deeming was suspected of being Jack the Ripper. Williams was also involved with the miners' strike of 1892, which took tact and authority to keep under control. The discovery of Coolgardie meant sleepy Southern Cross was gone forever as the criminal element moved in. When Kalgoorlie was discovered, an experienced Williams was transferred to the new find, and Southern Cross lost a good man.

Williams, J: Managed the State battery when it was installed in 1903. The battery was the first in WA to be owned by the State and gave much needed impetus to the mining industry. Beforehand the smaller mines had nowhere to crush their ore and the industry had reached a point of stagnation. The State Battery and arrival of the goldfields water were a godsend for a struggling Yilgarn. Residues from the battery can still be seen along the South Yilgarn road.

Meet Laura, our new Dietitian (DT)!

"I live in Northam, just down the road and moved here from McLaren Vale, in South Australia three and a half years ago to work as a Dietitian. I've made it my home and am now settled here, with many friends, and a partner. We have a puppy named Soxie.

"Mostly clients say they love my approach to a balanced lifestyle and moderation with foods. I often say to people "all foods are good foods, we just need to consider portions and frequency of consumption in relation to health outcome/goals".

If you require support from a DT call 9081 3222 or request a referral from your GP.

We asked Dr Anna ... "What exactly is a Paediatrician?"

She said "Paediatricians are specialists... and while "paeds" is a very general specialty, it is like being a GP just for kids. Seeing a paediatrician can save you lots of time, travel and having to set up a range of appointments. Paeds can take care of most of your children's health needs because they specialise in children's health.

We see kids in relation to general medical problems. And due to specialising in children's health, we can work with various medical and developmental problems eliminating the need to refer them to another "Specialist". "

To make a paediatric booking see your GP or call 9081 3222.

Meet Sha-May, our new Physiotherapist (PT)!

Sha-May, Eastern Wheatbelt Physiotherapist, joined the Allied Health Professional team earlier this year and has been travelling around the region since then. As physiotherapist, we are in the business of caring for people from a holistic perspective. Contrary to popular belief, physios don't just do massage. In the outpatient clinic, we have clients from all core physio areas.

Please contact us at Merredin Hospital on 9081 3222 to make a referral in your area!

What is ear health?

Did you know that we define your ear or your child's ear as a healthy ear by how it looks and how it functions?

Hearing develops around the sixth week of pregnancy and helps humans interact with each other and their environment. Not surprisingly, not being able to hear or having reduced hearing ability can adversely affect your child's growth and development.

If you have a query or want some more information about our amazing service don't hesitate to contact Rebecca, our Child and Community Health Nurse, on 9081 3222.

Recovery from Perinatal Anxiety & Depression

If you are experiencing perinatal (during pregnancy or after birth) anxiety or depression you may have many questions:

- Why is this happening to me?
- Who can help me through this?
- What would be the best sort of treatment or support for me?
- Will I get better and how long will it take?
- What if I want to have another baby in the future?

A range of physical, psychological and external factors can contribute to the development of perinatal anxiety and depression. Recovery depends on addressing all of these factors and often accessing professional help and support. Help is available and getting the right support early leads to a faster recovery.

Who can Help?

Asking for help is the first and most difficult step. It is important to know that there are many informed and compassionate health professionals who are experienced in helping parents overcome perinatal anxiety and depression. An understanding health professional can be a great ally throughout your recovery process. You could talk to anyone of these: General Practitioner (GP); obstetrician; midwife; Child Health Nurse; PANDA; psychologist; psychiatrist; social worker; counsellor or other trusted health professional.

The discussion you have may cover:

- How long you have been feeling anxious or depressed
- How distressing your thoughts and feelings are
- Whether your thoughts and feelings are affecting your daily life i.e., sleep disturbance; change in appetite; or inability to function as you normally would
- Any scary thoughts or feelings that are difficult to share like thoughts of harming yourself or your baby/children.

If you feel that you are not heard, or that the concerns you raise are not taken seriously, seek an alternative opinion.

PANDA is a good place to start if you are unsure who to approach. The PANDA Helpline staff will listen and help you identify ways to obtain support and treatment if needed.

Treatment Options

Recovery from perinatal anxiety or depression can involve more than one kind of approach.

Medication

Sometimes medication is recommended. It is important to know that there are medications that can be safely used in pregnancy or during breastfeeding¹. Before prescribing medication, however, your doctor should discuss with you:

- How long you have been feeling this way
- The severity of your symptoms
- The safety of the medication
- How long you might need to take it
- Why they are recommending this treatment and how they expect it to help
- If there are any side effects and whether these can be reduced
- If there are effective alternatives to medication.

¹Patkar A, et. al. Pharmacotherapy of Depression in Pregnancy. Annals of Clinical Psychiatry. 2004; 16:87–100.

Be gentle
with yourself.

If you feel that you are not getting the support and understanding you need from your doctor when discussing whether to take medication, get a second opinion.

Counselling

Counselling can be useful if you are ready to speak about your challenges and vulnerabilities with a trained professional. In counselling, feelings and beliefs can be explored and supported which can help you feel cared for and understood. You can also learn strategies to help manage distress during these difficult times:

- Your GP can make a referral and work closely with other health professionals, such as a psychologist or a psychiatrist, who may be providing care
- The PANDA Helpline is free and confidential and can put you in touch with counsellors experienced in providing support to people during pregnancy or after birth.

General Strategies for Recovery

Caring for a baby can be an isolating and exhausting experience, particularly if you are the primary caregiver. Anxiety and depression can heighten these feelings. The following strategies may help:

- Seek company when you're feeling low (even though this might be the last thing you want to do, being alone can make everything seem bigger and less manageable)
- Share your experience with other parents who have experienced or are experiencing anxiety or depression
- Join a supported playgroup or support group
- Call PANDA to talk about your thoughts and feelings and explore options for support
- Talk to a trusted family member or friend
- Prioritise rest. Talk to your Child Health Nurse about support available in the community or ask family members or friends for practical support
- Look after your own health by eating well and getting some gentle exercise (walking is a great starting point!)
- Limit alcohol and other drugs that can work against your wellbeing
- Be gentle with yourself. Recovery can take time. It is a journey that often involves taking a few steps forward and then a step back.

Planning for Your Future

Having another baby

If you've experienced a mental health concern during pregnancy or after childbirth you may be thinking about whether or not you will have any more children. These are difficult questions, and ones that you will most probably want to discuss with your family, as well as a medical practitioner who knows your history and circumstances.

Chance of recurrence: the statistics

Your chance of experiencing depression with future births is thought to be up to 40%. However, with understanding of your experience, including knowing when to get help and having a strong support network, the risk or severity can be reduced. If you have experienced very severe depression, or postnatal psychosis, it is particularly important to get advice from a doctor and consider all your options before becoming pregnant again.

It can be difficult to decide whether or not to have another baby. Ultimately, this is something that only you can decide.

Things you can do:

- Give yourself time to recover emotionally after your baby is born. It can be difficult to notice when the time is right. A good indicator might be when you are enjoying parenthood and feeling engaged with your baby.
- Talk about having another baby with the important people in your life. While the decision is yours, you are likely to need their support.
- Talk to your GP or mental health professional about what you should consider when planning to have another baby. Have a good network of health care professionals to support you.
- Know the symptoms of anxiety and depression. Have some agreed 'signs' for when it's time to seek help (these might be things like changes in sleep or increased irritability).

With planning and support, knowing the signs and symptoms and using strategies developed in your previous recovery period, you will be better prepared to take action early and deal with any recurrence.

Mental health in Western Australia

What's happening?

In Western Australia:

One person dies every day by suicide. That's more than the road toll.

Nearly 3 out of 4 deaths by suicide are male.

WA's suicide rate was approx 20 per cent higher than the national average in 2016.

A big risk factor for suicide and self-harm is having a mental health issue.

We can reduce the risk of suicide by treating mental health issues early, by building resilience, and improving the overall mental health and wellbeing of Western Australians.

1 IN 5 AUSTRALIANS WILL HAVE A MENTAL HEALTH ISSUE EACH YEAR

WAS SPENT ON MENTAL HEALTH SERVICES IN AUSTRALIA IN 2015-2016

Where to get help?

If you or someone you know is in a life threatening situation, or is at risk of harm to themselves or others, call 000.

Getting help early can make a difference. A good place to start is:

- Talk to your GP or someone you trust.
- Call a support line.
- Contact a support service.
- Try the Think Mental Health check-up tool.

Looking after your mental health and wellbeing

Looking after your mental health and wellbeing is just as important as looking after your physical health.

It's normal to have ups and downs in life, it happens to all of us. Looking after your mental health enables you to function well and be able to cope when things aren't going so well.

Little things you can do include:

SPEND TIME WITH FRIENDS, LOVED ONES & PEOPLE YOU TRUST

GET ENOUGH SLEEP

TAKE TIME OUT & ENJOY YOUR HOBBIES

KEEP ACTIVE & EAT WELL

TALK ABOUT OR EXPRESS YOUR FEELINGS REGULARLY

REDUCE ALCOHOL CONSUMPTION
